Biglerville High school holds a very special place in my heart for many reasons. I would give my high school 4/5 stars. To start, the teachers are close to perfect. Almost all of the teachers try to collaborate and talk with the students. There are a variety of classes to choose from; I have never felt there like there is only a couple of options. Next, the guidance counselors are always trying their hardest to make sure that the student is happy in their highschool classes. The only thing about Biglerville high school that I disagree with is the lack of projects in class. The classes follow a pattern of learning the new material, practicing on it, and then testing on it. Other than this small setback for the school, I think there are no other problems with the functionality of Biglerville High School.

I liked how the teachers were willing to help the students succeed in their academics. The music program is excellent and welcoming.

Biglerville High is an amazing place to go to school. Over all the school size is small, but it leaves a lasting impact. All the teachers and administrations care about their students want to see them pass and graduate. Its a great places to create lasting relationships with other students and teachers. If it wasn't for Biglerville staff I never would have majored in psychology.

Many people might not have heard of Biglerville High School. It is located in a small town in Biglerville, Pennsylvania. I graduated with the class of one hundred and forty students. Being a smaller class size has its advantages and disadvantages. Each class room in Biglerville High School contained about twenty to twenty-five students. This means that the teachers got to know you better and there is more help available if needed. The teachers at Biglerville really cared about the students there. They took interest in not only our school work but our lives. A disadvantage about going to a smaller school is the sport opportunities. We didn't have as many sports as the bigger schools did. Biglerville didn't have lacrosse, which I would have really loved to give a try. Overall, I had a good high school experience. I am proud to be alumni of Biglerville High School, it made me who I am today.
